European Law and Governance School (ELGS) is now open for applications

Aiming to be continuously at the forefront of research and education, the European Public Law Organization (EPLO) is pleased to announce the creation of its special Agency called the European Law and Governance School (ELGS).

The European Law and Governance School was officially presented at the Presidential Palace of the Italian Republic Quirinale, in the presence of H.E. The President of the Italian Republic Sergio Mattarella. H.E. The President Sergio Mattarella made an address, following the interventions of the President of the Faculty Board of the ELGS, Mario Pilade Chiti, of the President of the Board of Directors of the EPLO, Spyridon Flogaitis, of the Member of the Board of Trustees of the ELGS, Sabino Cassese, and of the Honorary President of the Board of Trustees of the ELGS, Giuliano Amato.

The European Law and Governance School (ELGS) is a modern international school with the aim and mission to offer Excellence in tertiary levels of Education in the fields of European Law and Governance and the vision to create a generation of youth that will identify themselves as Europeans, that will serve Europe, and will disseminate the idea, culture and values of Europe throughout the world.

The School (www.elgs.eu) offers undergraduate and postgraduate courses with a unique design, incomparable curriculum and fresh material that enable students a high degree of personalization, flexibility and interdisciplinarity. Students can choose from: a track of studies that offers a pan-European perspective of legal studies that is designed to create the European lawyer of the new era, or a track that focuses on European governance studies and contributes to the creation of a new generation of highly skilled administrators and leaders, or can select interdisciplinary degrees that combine both approaches.

The ELGS is also supported by an extensive International faculty network that expands throughout the world.
